WHY HE WAS BRAVE.
Lieutenant W. with a Drummer Boy
Faced an Angry Mob

A short narrative in Yesterdays relates to me an incident of something which occurred a few years ago, when a mob surrounded the courthouse in C——, and did considerable damage among the buildings, driving fire to a part of the structure and destroying valuable records. The state militia was hurriedly called out. Company A, consisting of 60 men, was hurried by speed train from a nearby city. The citizen soldiers arrived in C—— just after dark. The mob had heard of their coming, and rushed to the station to meet "the boys" with sticks and stones.

The column was formed in the car shed, but when the soldiers got out into the street they found it jammed with a raging mob, and were met by a volley of sticks, stones and bricks. The captain feared to advance, called a halt, and finally ordered a retreat. The company scattered in all directions except toward the mob, and came home on any sort of train that rolled in that direction. Only two men remained—the first Lieutenant and a small drummer boy scarcely 16 years old.

After the flight of the captain the command passed to the lieutenant. He tried to rally the boys, but to no purpose. He told the drummer boy that his orders were to report to his colonel at the county jail, and he proposed to do so, even if he had to go alone. The drummer declared that he was ready to obey orders. The lieutenant drew his sword and ordered his "company" to advance. The little fellow made his snare drum fairly rattle as the two marched out into the face of the crowd.

Whether the mob disdained to attack so small a "company," or admired its courage, will never be known, but the facts are that they actually escorted the lieutenant and his "drum corps" to the county jail, giving them the safest sort of convoy. After the trouble was over and the lieutenant had returned home, I asked him how he ever found the courage to do a thing so foolhardy. His reply was as follows:

"To tell you the truth, I don't deserve all this credit for bravery. I was just as big a coward as the rest of the boys, only in a different way—I was more afraid to go home than to face the mob. Father is an old regular army man, a West Pointer, and knows only duty. If I had shown the white feather, disobeyed orders, and sneaked home, father wouldn't have done a thing but take me out into the back yard, tie me fast to a tree, step off about ten paces, draw a 32-caliber revolver and simply shoot me full of holes. I preferred to take my chances with the mob. I knew what father would do."

A LEGEND OF TOPAZ.

How the Blind Emperor Theodosius Regained His Eyesight.

The topaz is called the stone of gratitude, and the old Roman books record the following legend, from which the stone derives this attribute:

The blind Emperor Theodosius used to hang a brass gong before his palace gates and sit beside it on certain days hearing and putting right the grievances of any of his subjects. Those who wished for his advice and help had to sound the gong, and immediately admission into the presence of Caesar was obtained.

One day a great snake crept up to the gate and struck the brass gong with her coils, and Theodosius gave orders that no one should molest the creature and bade her tell him her wish. The snake bent her crest slowly in homage and straightway told the following tale:

Her nest was at the base of the gateway tower, and while she had gone to find food for her young road a tribe of wild boars had invaded her house, killed the nestlings and now held possession of the little dwelling. Wild boar grunts get her just?"

The emperor gave orders for the porcupine to be slain and the weather to be restored to her desolate tower. Night fell, and the sleeping world had forgotten the porcupine's kindly deed, but with the early dawn a great serpent, he had left the palace, passed up the steps into the royal chamber and laid upon the floor of the emperors chair.

A citizen of St. Louis, looking through the public library, with its enormous collection of valuable books, feels surprised that the greatest possession is without a home of its own. In a certain sense this is denial. The majority of the people are in favor of a suitable library building, and put themselves on record to effect this at the polls. But a majority is not enough. The law is so drawn that an omission to vote either for or against it in the negative, counts as a vote against it in the affirmative.

The last award to the author is no longer valid. The author has sold his patent rights to the Cincinnati Camera Company, Inc.

PREHISTORIC MUMMIES.

Found in a Cave in El Paso County Texas.

George Weld, of Waco, while hunting lost cattle in the eastern portion of El Paso county, near the boundary line of Texas and New Mexico, discovered a cave which appears to indicate the burial place of ancient people.

The cave may have been artificially hollowed out of a big rock at the foot of one of the Guadalupe hills near the state border. The appearance of the entrance and the regularity of the interior portion of the hollow in the rock suggest that it was either partially or wholly made by hand. The walls are scratched with something that may be hieroglyphics made by an extinct race, and if some savant acquainted with those obsolete writings could go there might discover that they are the epitaphs of the dead persons whose remains are still to be found scattered on the floor and in niches.

When Mr. Weld and his companions entered the cavern they found that other explorers had preceded them and portions of the mummified bodies had been removed. There were seven, thoroughly dried up, and one of them is a female. The latter relic Mr. Weld appropriated, and he brought a portion of it, including the left hand and a portion of the arm, with him. The tapering fingers and symmetry of the hand made the cowboys believe it might have been a person of aristocratic lineage, possibly a queen of a tribe interred among the bodies of her attendants.

Everything indicates that centuries have passed since those people died and were wrapped in grass cloth and laid away in this immense grotto, the existence of which only became known within the last two years by reason of the cavity in the stones which had been piled up at the entrance.—Dallas News.

MANGABEIRA RUBBER.

New Product That Runs Para Rubber Close Second.

An important article on Mangabeira rubber appears in the Kew Bulletin.

Partly in consequence of an improvement in the purity of the rubber the price has recently advanced, and the price of the best sorts is not much less than that obtained for Para rubber. The chief centers for export of Mangabeira rubber are Brazil and Perambuco. Although but little is known so far of the cultivation of Mangabeira, it may be said that there is a considerable probability of its becoming an important tree in rubber culture.

The apparently easy accommodation of the tree to soil and climate, its early and considerable yield, together with the fact that even under the rough treatment of the Indians it preserves its fruitfulness, and also the facility with which it can be cultivated, promise a future.

And, taking a wide view of its possibilities, from its presence in the red coffee-growing soils of the west of the province of São Paulo, it appears suitable for the red earths of the German colonies of Africa, Usambara, and Colonia del Sacramento, such, for instance, as those at Misahole, in the latter colony.

For these soils it promises to be considerably better suited than the Ceará rubber plant and the Para rubber, and will probably give better results than Castillon, which is more hardy, earlier maturing and smaller—Nature.

Library Without a Home.

A citizen of St. Louis, looking through the public library, with its enormous collection of valuable books, feels surprised that the greatest possession is without a home of its own.

In a certain sense this is denial. The majority of the people are in favor of a suitable library building, and put themselves on record to effect this at the polls.

But a majority is not enough. The law is so drawn that an omission to vote either for or against it in the negative, counts as a vote against it in the affirmative.

Night fell, and the sleeping world had forgotten the porcupine's kindly deed, but with the early dawn a great serpent, he had left the palace, passed up the steps into the royal chamber and laid upon the floor of the emperors chair.

At the time of the emperor's death, he was buried with a drum and a trumpet.

Women as Well as Men
Are Most Miserable by Kidney Trouble.

Many people prize the mind, beauty, vigor and cheerfulness over all else. Kidneys are out of order or diseased.

Kidney trouble has become so common that it is uncommon for a child to be born without weak kidneys. If the child passes too often, if the scolds the flesh or if, when the child is an age when it should be able to walk, it is yet afflicted with swelling, depending upon the cause of difficulty is kidney trouble, and the first should be towards the treatment of the important organs. This unpleasant trouble is due to the natural condition of the kidneys and bladder and not to a habit of the body.

Women as well as men are made miserable by kidney trouble, and both need the same great remedy. The mind and the immediate effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It is sold by druggists. In every cent one dollar sizes. You may have a sample bottle by mail free, also pamphlet giving the history, including many of the thousands of testimonial letters received from sufferers cured, in writing Dr. Kilmer & Co., Birmingham, N. Goebel and Beckham Given Titles
With No Technical

Frankfort, Ky., Feb. 2.—The Democratic members of the legislature to-day effected a regular organization for the first time since the swearing in of Gov. Goebel. A secret session of the members of both houses was held in one of the Capital hotel, at which the election of William Goebel as governor, and J. C. W. Beckham as lieutenant-governor was reaffirmed, first in separate sessions of the house and senate and afterward in a joint session. Preceding this action, the members of the senate elected as president pro tempore Senator Carter, who was nominated for that position at yesterday's caucus. A committee of the members of the house, composed of Representatives Finn, Lafferty and Cochran, was also appointed to draw up a set of resolutions showing the condition of affairs as it exists at the State capitol to-day, and covering thoroughly the Democratic side of the controversy. These resolutions will be formally presented to the next session of the Democratic members of the legislature, to be held Monday. The session, which lasted for nearly two hours, was kept as secret as possible, for fear of possible interference. No further sessions will be held until Monday, an adjournment being taken until that time, and probably no further attempt will be made to hold sessions in the State house.

After ratifying their former action in regard to the governorship and lieutenant-governorship, considerable discussion took place as to a plan of action to be taken in regard to the session of the legislature called by Taylor at London next Tuesday. Though none of those who attended the caucus cared to discuss the matter, it seems to be well understood among the democratic members of the legislature that the session at London will be ignored altogether by them and that no democrat will attend until compelled to do so.

It was practically decided that no more formal demands will be made to hold sessions of the legislature in the state house by the democratic members in a body, who will, however, continue to hold sessions at some convenient place until the political atmosphere has cleared. This plan of action was decided on to forestall any attempt on the part of the republicans to arrest them and compel their attendance at London, which action, according to the democratic members, has been determined on by Taylor.

Arrests are attempted, no resistance will be made by the democrats, either to arrest or to attending the session at London should they be arrested. It was determined that all acts of violence should be avoided, and that the battle for supremacy should hereafter be fought out in the courts. Nevertheless, the situation tonight is regarded as a grave one by members of both parties, and no one is willing to forecast the result of the anticipated clash of authority between Taylor and the state courts.

Some action is expected at the session Monday in regard to offering a reward of $50,000 for the arrest and conviction of the would-be assassin of Gov. Goebel. The democratic leaders to a man are in favor of such action, and, although only a small proportion of the rank and file of the democratic legislators have been consulted in the matter, it is considered probable that favorable action will be taken on the matter when it is brought before them in regular session.

THE COUNCIL MEETING.
The Open Sewer in the Sixth Ward to be Covered.

The City Council met Friday evening and transacted routine business. The election of a police chief to succeed Officer Fees was taken up. [LETTER TO MRS. PINKHAM NO. 4498]
DEAR FRIEND—Two years ago I had a very bad attack of kidney trouble, so bad that I could not get up in the morning. For eight months after birth of baby I was not able to sit up. Doctors treated me, but with no help. I had bearing-down pains, burning in stomach, kidney and bladder trouble and my back was so stiff and sore the right side of my body was affected and everything I ate distressed me, and there was a bad discharge.

I was confined to bed when I wrote to you for advice and followed your directions faithfully, taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, Liver Salve and the like, and am now able to do the work of my household. I believe I should have died if it had not been for your compound. I hope this letter may be the result of benefiting some other suffering woman. I recommend your compound to every one.—MRS. MARY VAUGHN, TRIMBLE, PALMER CO., KENT.

Many of these sick women whose letters we print were utterly disengaged and left to their burden when they wrote to Lynn, Mass., to Mrs. Pinkham, and without charge. Of any kind received advice that made them strong, useful women again.

A martyr's words they were indeed; but even such a consolation could live only for a moment in the hearts of men so sore stricken.

Now that he has gone, his name will be recorded in the roll of Kentucky Democracy's saints, and had he lived longer there was the promise of his taking a place among the nation, great, for the depth of William Goebel's capacity had not yet been measured.

Plans for the raising of funds by popular subscription for the erection of a monument to Gov. Goebel's memory are rapidly taking shape.

The Election Board.

In the event of interference this board when it meets to-day at Frankfort, would probably adjourn to meet in Louisville. If the decision of this board should be in favor of the Democratic contestants, its action would have an important bearing on the conflict between the rival Governors. About 80 of the 119 counties of the State have Democratic officials, who, the Democrats believe, would recognize the Democratic Auditor and Treasurer and would not transact business with the Republican incumbents of those offices at Frankfort. This would involve the control of the State revenues which come to the State officers through the Sheriffs, the Circuit Clerks and the County Clerks. This matter affects the disposal of thousands of dollars of State funds and would bring into the already tangled state of affairs no end of new complications. The funeral of Gov. Goebel may cause some delay in the proceedings of the contest board, but a decision from it is expected before the end of the week.

Taylor Enjoined.

Frankfort, Ky., Feb. 5.—Judge Cantrill, of the Circuit Court Saturday granted a temporary injunction restraining Taylor from interfering with the meetings of the Legislature and from removing the seat of the Legislature to London, Ky. The temporary injunction is to remain binding till Feb. 8, when a hearing to make it permanent will be held before Judge Cantrill at Georgetown, Ky. No attempt will be made to secure personal service to the writ of injunction upon Taylor. Immediately after the issuance of the writ Judge Cantrill instructed Sheriff Senter, of Franklin county, to make no effort to present the order of the court. The Judge directed that it be allowed to remain binding without service because of the danger threatening the man who should undertake the task and the results that might ensue owing to the excited state of the public mind.

W.M. A. COLLIER, PAYMASTER OF THE U.S. NAVY.

One of the most responsible positions in the practical management of the United States Navy is that of Paymaster General. Only men of great executive and clerical ability can fill such a position. Such a man is the Hon. William A. Collier, Assistant Paymaster of the United States Navy. In a recent letter to Dr. Hartman he says:

"We have been using Pe-ru-na since Jan. 25, 1900. I have taken Pe-ru-na and its pleasure in recommending it to those needing a first-class tonic, feeling assured that it will do all that is claimed for it."

Yours truly, Wm. A. Collier.
